

Unstuffed Shells with Ricotta

& Creamy Parmesan Spinach Salad

35min

2 Servings

This deconstructed version of stuffed shells has all the flavors of the classic dish without the extra work! Pasta shells bake in a tangy bed of marinara sauce with Parmesan-ricotta dollops spooned over top. While the shells bake, we combine lemon juice, mayonnaise and Parmesan to create a creamy dressing for a simple spinach salad. A final sprinkle of chopped parsley finishes the velvety pasta.

1. Cook pasta

Preheat oven to 375°F with a rack in the center.

Bring a medium pot of salted water to a boil. Add pasta shells and cook for 6 minutes (they will be underdone). Reserve ½ cup cooking water and drain pasta.

4. Bake pasta

Bake pasta on the center rack for 15 minutes. Switch oven to broiler and broil until the pasta is bubbly and browned around the edges, about 2 minutes (watch closely as ovens vary).

2. Prep ricotta

Meanwhile, finely grate Parmesan. Grate 2 teaspoons garlic.

In a small bowl, stir to combine ricotta and half of the Parmesan. Season to taste with salt and pepper.

5. Make salad dressing

Pick parsley leaves from stems and coarsely chop; discard stems. Squeeze 2 teaspoons lemon juice into a medium bowl.

To bowl with lemon juice, add mayonnaise, remaining grated garlic and Parmesan, 1 tablespoon oil, and 1 teaspoon water. Season to taste with salt and pepper.

3. Assemble pasta

In a medium baking dish, combine the all of the marinara, reserved cooking water, and half of the garlic. Stir in pasta and spread in an even layer.

Dollop ricotta mixture all over pasta.

6. Finish & serve

Add spinach to the dressing and toss to coat. Finish with a few cracks of black pepper.

Garnish pasta with parsley and sprinkle with red pepper flakes, if desired. Enjoy!
